WEEKEND HEROES BY ADRIAENSENS

The strength of Weekend Heroes is its remarkable period colour photography. All colour images in these three volumes were scanned from original 35mm Kodachrome and Anscochrome slides, and 120mm Ektachrome transparencies. Our main source are collections we gathered over the years from amateur photographers (Joe and Margaret Smith, Bob Lytle, Al Long, etc.) who usually wandered around the track and pits shooting pictures. So much different from professional photography who always used black and white film (magazines were not printed in colour yet) and had to make sure they had every competitor in action from one or two vantage points. This results in the same images, only with a different car; he had to make sure to have at least one action shot of the eventual winner, something he obviously didn't know at the start of the race.

To experience 1950s California sports car racing in vivid colour zips you right back to those days as if it were yesterday. This makes Weekend Heroes unique among motor sport books.

Bob Gurr, famous for his connection with the Disney Studios, was a flagman working at both CSCC and SCCA events. He carried around his Leica, again with terrific full action results.

There's no doubt you will enjoy the new Weekend Heroes over and over again, a true time machine that brings you back to the California sports car racing scene in the 1950s.

Although unread, this book has been dropped, the hard cover damaged as shown and the spine loosened.

SIXTIES MOTOR RACING BY PALAWAN PRESS

By Paul Parker with a foreword by Nick Mason and photography by Michael Cooper

Courtesy of Palawan Press:

Sixties Motor Racing isn't just about cars – it is also about people. Michael Cooper wasn't merely an observer of the F1 scene of the day but became, as his reputation grew, part of its very fabric and a friend to the most celebrated drivers of the day. This book brings together a decade-long body of his work – 390 photographs, many never before seen, from his personal collection. His pictures capture the characters and moods of the likes of Moss, Hill, Clark, Stewart and many other legendary names in a host of revealing studies, both on and off-duty.

Paul Parker's year-by-year narrative, along with over 165 lifestyle images from the sixties, puts Michael Cooper's pictures into the social, political and cultural context of what may regard as motor racing's golden era.

Available in six editions, the book measures 325mm x 325mm and is 446 pages in length.

HERBERT JOHNSON CRASH HELMET SUPPLIED BY PATEY (LONDON) LTD.

Herbert Johnson were one of the preferred purveyors of bash-hats to racing's elite up to the early-mid 1960's era.

The company, founded in 1889, made its name for its silk-velvet top-hats. By the outbreak of World War 1 its output was dominated by the demands of the military. Goldie Gardner was the first racer to commission a 'protective hat' from then proprietor, Geoffrey Glazier. Stirling Moss was a later customer as demand for the firm's race products grew.

This restored Herbert Johnson crash helmet was purchased in 2008 from renowned supplier Patey (London) Ltd. The helmet is constructed of shellac with cotton webbing and leather/suede side straps. Presented a bespoke carrying case with previous bill of sale, this is a fine piece of racing memorabilia.

BUGATTI AUTOMOBILES ET AUTORAILS POSTER BY GERI c.1938

Around 1935 the modernist and impressionist artist R. Géri received a commission by Bugatti to design a promotional poster for the usine at Molsheim. The theme was the common top speeds of the Bugatti Autorail train and the Type-57 road cars of the day.

The Second World War shortly broke out, and so few posters were put up in period. Post-war the concept was deemed somewhat out of date, and so Bugatti used remaining copies for, of all things, to wrap spare parts for shipping. As such survivors are both scarce and highly prized.

This rare example was owned by a long-term Bugatti owner and enthusiast for many years, recently being cleaned and backed onto linen to preserve its integrity.

A rare offering, and well regarded by art collectors and Bugatti enthusiasts alike.

The poster measures approximately 99 x 62cm, and is marked on the bottom margin, Fischer * Litho A Michel Strasburg 30 Rue D'Ail
